Computer Tips & Tricks

Group Computer Games

Remember games like Pictionary where you used to test your artistry skills against family & friends.

Well now there are digital versions of this game and they are a lot of fun.

What you need is a TV attached to your computer as the primary machine. This is where the players see the game played out.

Then, all the players need a mobile phone (smart phone) - that is all the hardware you need.

On the primary machine, start by going to the jackboxgames.tv web site, decide which game to buy, download and install.

There are lots of games to choose from, the Jackbox Party Pack has some great games in it for $24.99

In this pack, a great game to start with is DRAWFUL.

Once purchased – start the game on your primary machine and you will be given a 4 character ROOM code.

Then each player, on their phone, opens up a browser, and goes to jackbox.tv – they enter the ROOM code provided, then enter their name, and tap PLAY.

You are now connected and playing the game. Once all the other players have done the same, you are ready to begin. Follow the instructions on your phone and turn up the volume on the TV so you hear the game feedback.

Each player then draws their own avatar. The best way to learn what to do is to actually play the game, so just have a couple of practice goes. Don't get stuck over-thinking an answer, just keep the game moving and you will see what happens. You get points for guessing correctly, and bonus points for tricking your opponents.

Have fun & call us if you need help.
